From Your Location Team

Visit the southwest coast of St. Kitts Island and find yourself at the port of Basseterre, one of the oldest towns in the eastern Caribbean. Founded in the early 17th century by the French, the port served as the capital of the French colony of Saint-Christophe and then became the capital of the entire island of Saint Kitts. Upon arrival, head to Independence Square, which today serves as the social center of the city and a gathering place for many. Next, spend some time at the Circus for plenty of people-watching and a roundabout with a historic clock at its center. Head to the Clay Villa Plantation House and Gardens to learn about Basseterre's past and wander through picturesque gardens filled with local flora. For more history, stop at the National Museum or tour St. George's Anglican Church. Satisfy your shopping craving with a stop at the Amina Craft Market or the Public Market, offering locally crafted goods; or for more modern shops, head to the Pelican Shopping Mall.
