HIS RULE IS OVER SPACE AND TIME

HIS HOLINESS POPE PIUS XII

HIS THRONE THE HEARTS OF MEN

AS ALL CHRISTIAN eyes turn toward Rome under the inspiration of the Holy Year, the 1950 Jubilee, The Catholic High School of Baltimore journeys in spiritual fealty to the feet of His Holiness, Pius XII, there to seek inspiration from his Christlike calm; there to participate with the whole Christian world in the threefold blessings of the Holy Year.

Gratefully, then, and reverently we dedicate this issue of The Troubadour to our beloved and saintly spiritual shepherd, His Holiness, Pius XII.

His Excellency
ARCHBISHOP OF BALTIMORE

WITH EXTRAORDINARY graciousness and acumen, His Excellency, the Most Reverend Archbishop Francis P. Keough, D.D., has stepped into the illustrious footsteps of such great churchmen as Cardinal Gibbons and, lately, Archbishop Curley. Like his predecessors in the oldest diocese of the United States, Archbishop Keough has evidenced a vital interest in Catholic education and has lost no time in expanding the educational and charitable works of the Church.

It is with deep pleasure that The Catholic High School recalls Archbishop Keough's fatherly interest and encouragement in the activities of our school.

OUR DIOCESAN LEADERS

IN THE 1950 Troubadour, we will endeavor to portray our four years of high school life against its background of Franciscan culture and ideals.

We know that the opportunities provided at The Catholic High are invaluable precisely because they are conditioned by Franciscan idealism. In the disturbed period when Francis of Assisi walked the Umbrian hills, his message of love and sacrifice cleared the ugly spirit of the time and prepared for that great epoch, the Thirteenth Century. There is a certain analogy between his age and ours.

Dissension, hatred, and fear mock our dear-won peace. May not the message of St. Francis, preserved for us as an inestimable heritage by our Franciscan faculty, inspire us with the great Franciscan humanitarianism: recognition of the brotherhood of man devolving from our common Fatherhood.

In secular education we have been fitted second to none by our intelligent and cultured faculty. Socially, we have been given opportunities to develop into cultured Americans, world citizens conscious of world-wide obligations. Spiritually, we have reaped the inheritance of the Seraphic Social Reformer, who was truly the world citizen primarily because he appreciated his kinship in the Mystical Body of Christ.

Education at The Catholic High School presents a threefold aspect: First, that since God is the Author of truth, the more clearly we see as He sees, the more closely shall we approach all truth. Second, that social development is an integral part of total growth. Third, that unchanging Christian principles are inherent to sound Catholic living, and loyal citizenship.

In the pages of The Troubadour, then, we invite you to accompany us through four cherished years in our beloved Alma Mater.

The Rev. Leo J. McCormick, Ph.D.
Superintendent of Schools in the Archdiocese of Baltimore

PART I: SEEING THINGS

AS GOD SEES THEM

OUR OWN SISTERS OF ST. FRANCIS

THROUGH THE Sisters of the Third Order of St. Francis, whose motherhouse is at Glen Riddle, Pennsylvania, we participate in the current of Franciscan thought and culture that began so long ago with gentle St. Francis, that flamed anew in the selfless devotion of Mother Mary Francis, foundress of this community, and that daily assumes a reality for us in the intellectual, social, and spiritual life of Catholic High. It was the vision and courage of Mother Mary Generosa, dreaming of a Catholic high school education for the young people of Baltimore, that effected the erection of The Catholic High School in 1939.

And it is through the wise direction of Sr. M. Zacharia, present principal, and the zeal of our faculty, that the mainsprings of Catholic education continue to nourish us here today.

Honored to be the first graduating class under Sr. M. Zacharia's able administration, we seniors are well aware of our principal's worth. With calm dignity, Sister Zacharia has guided our fortunes to their successful ending. Deeply grateful, we bid farewell to our beloved faculty and Alma Mater.

At work bright and early are these faculty members, seen in the office on a Monday morning preparing for the activities over which they preside. They are Miss Kathleen Bracken, instructor in English and history and moderator of the debating team; Mrs. Marguerite Robinson, who trains future homemakers through food classes; Mrs. Catherine Holden, clothing instructor; and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, extreme right, instructor in commercial subjects. Sr. Mary Gervase reports that her clerical duties at Catholic High are interesting and varied.

Sister Erminelda, school librarian, and Sister Arnoldine, directress of the cafeteria, are seen in the library on the first floor. Sister Erminelda also teaches mathematics. Sister Arnoldine is responsible for the variety and quality of our tasty lunches.

AT CATHOLIC HIGH

EACH YEAR they see us come through Catholic High's great doors—a mite green we are, a speck brash, a great deal bewildered. And each year they take us mildly, a little amusedly, through all the paces that only a freshman can know, and only a freshman homeroom teacher can remember. We go dowstairs to sewing, they tell us, once—five times. No, the gym did not move today, it is still on the second floor, if we but look again. So, two, three weeks pass when, lo! we are suddenly independent; we know all the answers. Now, with grateful memory we recall our patient, grand teachers who met us long ago, one unforgettable September morning.

WE BECOME AWARE OF NOBLE TRADITIONS

APPROXIMATELY forty parishes are represented by the 350 members of the Freshman Class. It is during their eighth year in grade school that freshmen-to-be must decide where they will obtain a high school education. For most, there is hardly a moment of indecision. So many of their friends attend The Catholic High, or so many have had sisters to graduate from it, that the school of their choice is already a familiar and valued friend who must be sought quickly if enrollment is possible. Thus it is, about the sixth of June, eighth-grade graduates apply for admission to The Catholic High School. The fortunate applicant is informed of school regulations and the traditions she will be expected to uphold. She must equip herself with a smart green uniform and a gym outfit for two periods weekly of physical education. She will follow an academic roster, but must decide whether to elect the home-economics class open to freshmen—Clothing. Then she must don that jaunty emblem of all Edisonites, the topper, for weekly Mass in the auditorium or Benediction. That sturdy topper will travel with her for four years, perched solemnly at times atop her young intelligence. Yet, some glorious June morning, it will be discarded for white mortar board and tassel. Miss Freshman will be a graduate!

"Here's what we've been looking for!" Three ambitious freshmen, Barbara Dirscherl, Regina Dougherty, and Margaret Sarguelligo, all of 2D, keep abreast of current events by checking the World News of the Week for their World History class.

Freshmen representatives look to Phyllis Kreslein 4D to interpret a problem in undergraduate activities. They are: Beatrice Cimino 1D, Anna Furnieri 2D, Patricia Jackowiak 3D, Mary Parr 5D, Mary Smith 6D, and Daryl Roberts 7D.

Eager to learn the practical application of religion to daily life, freshmen prick up their ears when Father Echle asks Anna Furnieri to explain why we are obliged to give glory to God. Religious instruction by Father Echle is given to freshmen and sophomores on Thursday mornings in the auditorium.

A glimpse of an Algebra I class reveals Section 4D searching for "x". All freshmen take algebra four periods weekly. Dolores LaCotti and Janet McCartney are at the board.

Shirley Hauber and Loretta Grogan give their translations before an audience of absorbed Latin I students. Tense formation and vocabulary building require much freshman application.

IF THE FRESHMAN teacher needs patience, fortitude must be the special armor of the sophomore guide. What but that great breastplate of the Lord, fortitude, could withstand the vitality and assurance of fifteen years and a sophomore roster? "Then if ever come perfect days," sang we. We "knew the ropes"; we had conquered algebra, and foresworn European History. For us there was a better opportunity to make the Jay-Vee; there was a Sophomore Day; a major part in the Choral Demonstration and—and—our own beloved homeroom teachers! How gallantly they arose to every occasion and shepherded us against our youthful exuberance toward that blessed shore—the Junior Year.

Upholding the traditions of Catholic High is the responsibility of these sophomore representatives. They are: Virginia Novotny 1C, Anna Braml 2C, Mary Keller 3C, Mary Berger 4C, Ruth Newheiser 5C, and Estelle Lind 6C.

Inspired by Miss Bracken's enthusiasm, this class in English II is enjoying the study of folk ballads. Elizabeth Amann is about to play "Bonnie Barbara Allen," while Charlotte Forward indicates that it is narrative poetry. Listeners will sing the refrain.

WITH ALL THE

AN AMERICAN author once stated that the more people you meet, the more experiences you have, the more gracefully you rise to new situations, the more complete a personality you should become. If true, this has bearing on TCHS students for in her sophomore year, Miss Cathy High finds homerooms are no longer alphabetically arranged. She must meet and study with a new group of girls.

Brings back memories? Of course! Geometry is meant to develop logical reasoning. Sister Maxelinda seems to have interested Mary Hohman, Joan Donnelly, Doris Lambdin and Gerry Prechocki in the subject.

Vocation Week activities are an important phase of student guidance. Attractive posters on religious life have attracted Joan Hogan, Theresa Prible, Katharine Schmidt, and Constance Glass. The Sodality's assembly program on careers open to TCHS graduates was unique in using alumnae as Exhibit A.

Baking pie can be an exciting adventure in Mrs. Robinson's food class. Shirley Rohde, Elaine Wolfe, Marie Lozski, Joan Phail, and Margaret Ritger prepare the crust; Agnes Hermann opens a can of preserves; Carmela and Dolores Pullara display a finished product.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION

IN HER SECOND year, the Catholic High student continues her academic foundation. She now pursues the second in the Quest for Happiness religion series, which emphasizes the virtue of Hope. She is introduced to the wonders of the natural world through the medium of biology. She accompanies Julius Caesar through Gaul, and in the Thomas More edition of the Prose and Poetry Series steps into the world of chivalry with Gareth and Elaine, or into the world of symbolism in The Ancient Mariner.

Famished sophomores look cheerful when Sr. M. Arnoldine, Mrs. Jorden, and Mrs. Hermann serve them hot lunches. Doris Yingling, Mary England, Lillian Hessler and Genevieve Dell' Uomo are in the foreground.

OUR LOYALTY

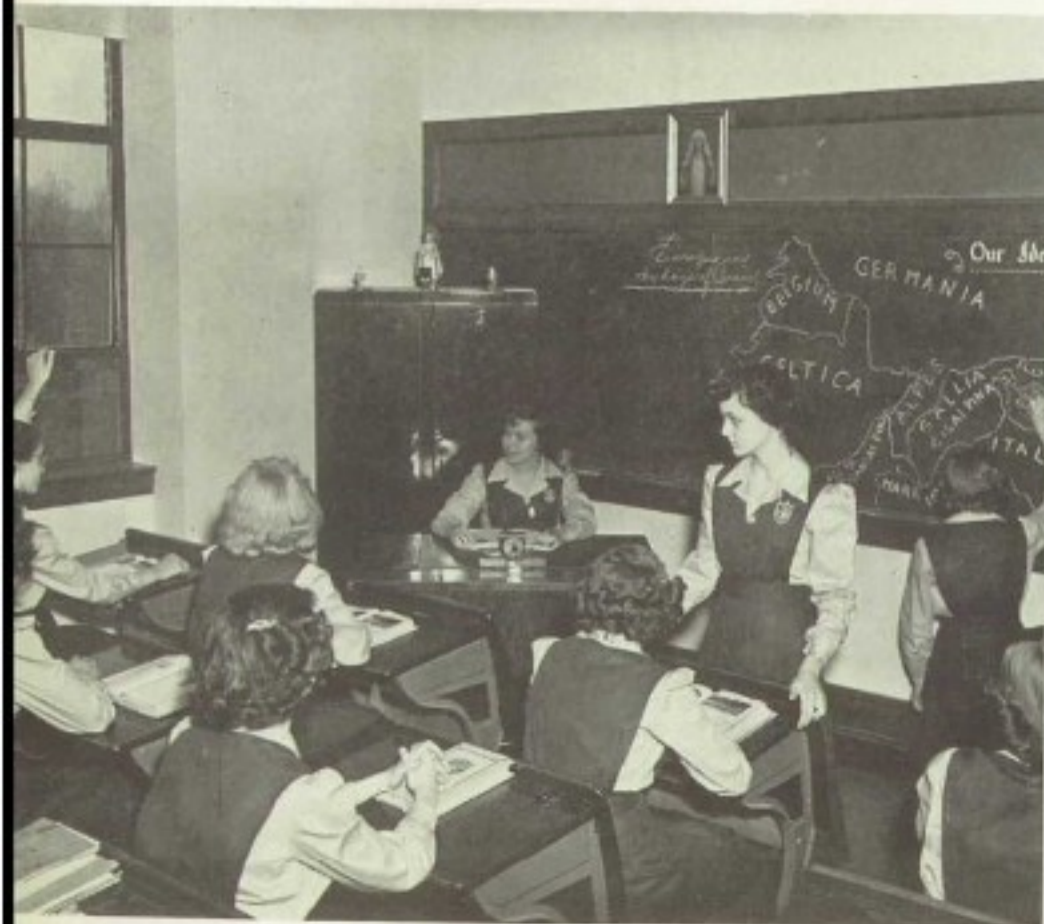

Art, a minor in the first and second years, is popular with these students examining their conventional designs: Helen Broohart, Catherine Corbin, Rosalie Graves, Carlee Gerick, and Marlene Kempfh.

THROUGH THE study of geometry, the earnest sophomore goes through a process of much abstract thinking which develops and sharpens her reasoning power. Her curriculum includes, moreover, music appreciation and art, with foods as an elective.

Late in January, her class participates in the Choral Demonstration, with drama, music, and narration centered upon a famous musician and his works. Toward the end of this year, she thinks seriously about her future vocation, for in April she must select a roster which will either build on her academic background, or equip her with vocational skills for the business world.

"Europe in the days of Caesar" keeps these Latin II students alert. Frances Ebert, at desk, takes the discussion calmly, but Anna Ena, interrogated by the class, looks somewhat worried.

A visit to Our Lady's shrine is traditional with Highwayettes. Doris Winterling, Elizabeth Schlegel, Mary Ortt, Barbara Koros, and Carol Hofferbert take time to ask their Mother's blessing.

DEEPENS UNTIL

"Curious?" smiles Geraldine Rolfes to her fellow-biologists Mary Ratzacak and Constance Stochowski. "This is a wasp's house—vacant, thank you." Biology is a must for all sophomores.

"Wait on me!" gasp Frances Schaeffer, Pat Messlon, and Marilyn Eser to Jean Murray. Typing and loose-leaf paper are favorites of last-minute shoppers in the second floor bookshop.

SINCE THE SOPHS have no graduation to dream of, nor initiation day to look forward to, there is a good possibility that this is their most carefree year. No longer are the Cathy Highs so green as their uniforms, nor are they so uninformed as they were a year ago. Now they are transformed into gay, cheerful teeners who diffuse a remarkable amount of school spirit, charity, and burning enthusiasm. In school drives, keen competition spurts them to the top. Witness their records in the Review, patron, magazine drives. They achieve success with great sportsmanship, then eagerly await the next challenge. In scholastic fields they are represented by a long list of honor students, and are active as cheerleaders, basketball stars, and varsity bowlers. They constitute one-fourth of the school, and you have seen them, in these pages, making history at Catholic High.

A scene from the annual Choral Demonstration. This assembly is the outgrowth of the weekly music appreciation period—a requirement for all sophomores.

THIRD YEAR

EVENTUALLY WE arrived at the Third Estate, that splendid adult land known as the "upper class." It was easy following the new rosters: Latin-Science, Modern Classical, Academic Commercial. Things were "smooth." It wasn't until later that we realized why. It wasn't we! It was They! Yes, They, our junior teachers who worked so quietly behind the scenes. How many things they did for us: the Junior Prom, Class Rings, Retreat at Glen Riddle, debates, programs, sports . . . And all the time we thought it was we, us, our little selves. It was wonderful, that junior year, but what could it have meant without our splendid Sisters to cheer and inspire us?

WE ARE "GRATEFUL DAUGHTERS" WITH

TRUE CATHOLIC living continues as the core of the curriculum through study of the third of the Quest for Happiness series, attendance at weekly Mass and Fr. Eckle's instructions, and through deepening personal convictions.

In secular subjects, the program becomes diverse. Juniors may choose the Latin-Science, Modern Classical, or Academic Commercial course. If the CH-er is college bound, or desires to enter nurses' training school, she will probably choose the Latin-Science course with English, Latin, chemistry, and French as majors. Latin III is concerned with Cicero's orations, but actually much more is learned. Juniors grasp the fundamentals of chemistry, and perform a great many experiments in their well-equipped laboratory. French I centers largely on pronunciation, reading, and grammar.

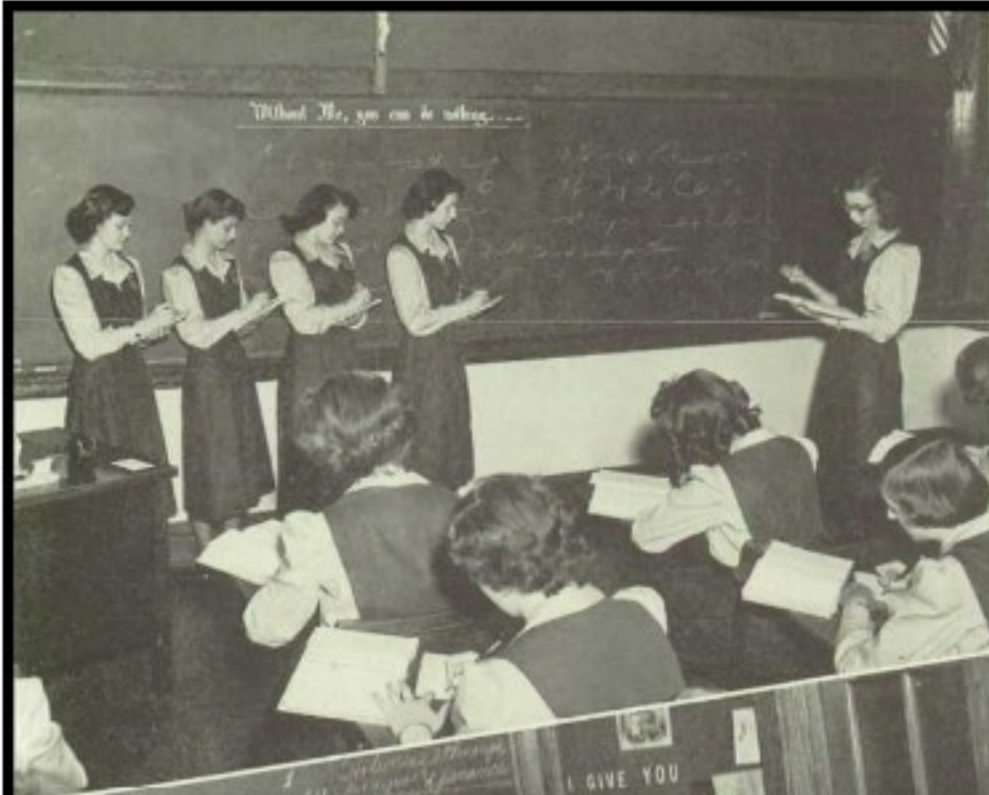

With more ease than many in the upper-income bracket, Mary Jane Florence, Betty Pessagno, and Nancy Nolte tackle a March 15 headache during a business math class. But some students are dubious about Nancy's "earned income."

Un! Le! Ou! Such vocal sticklers are not irksome any more to these French I students, as they watch Dolores Hennessey, Elizabeth Taylor, and Elaine Oros put last night's homework on the board. At the right, POD student Beverly George questions classmates from the American Observer.

The Modern Classical course follows the same schedule as the Latin-Science, except that French replaces Latin, and Problems in Democracy can be introduced.

If secretarial work is her goal, then Miss Catholic High will follow the Academic Commercial course. In this year she begins Gregg shorthand, typewriting and business mathematics. She may also elect a modern language or P.O.D. Any junior qualifying may carry a major in journalism.

Senior shorthand proficiency is built on intensive drill in the junior year. Clara Bischoff, Eleanor Green, Beverly George, and Gloria Brenneman take down a short letter from Mary Hook. To the right, junior typists conscientiously "keep eyes on the copy." Pat Lanahan, Mary Beach, Pat Mitchell, and Lorraine Barger are in the foreground.

Looks as if good things are in store for the junior class, if the smiles of representatives Catharine Ward, Shirley Mullaney, Mary O'Brockie, Jean Funk, and Dorothy Forestell foretell their plans.

MEMORIES OF GRACIOUS LIVING

Mary Linsenmeyer was privileged to dedicate the junior prom to Mary Immaculate for the class of '51. This dedication is traditional at all Catholic High proms.

IN RETROSPECT fill in this outline with personal remembrance:

Time: Evening of February 10.

Place: Gymnasium, smooth as glass, transformed by stately palms and soft lights.

Music: Carl Hamilton and his orchestra.

Actors: The Junior Miss and her escort.

Costumes: Formal gowns of rainbow hue and Brooks' specials.

Action: The best dancing of the year by the smartest couples.

Curtain: Descended at midnight to the regret of all.

Comment: "The best time we ever had!"

English in Action—Governor Wm. Preston Lane presents awards during a luncheon at the Lord Baltimore Hotel to winners of the state-wide essay: Hire the Handicapped: It's Good Business. Patricia Deuerling and Gloria Novak captured second and third places respectively. Both seniors seem quite at ease dining with Maryland's leading official.

TRADITIONALLY, THE FINEST

CATHOLIC HIGH trains for leadership! Officers elected at the beginning of the year initiate the activities of the senior class and uphold traditions of loyalty and service created by former officers.

In the academic field, Catholic High's record of scholarships and awards indicate a student body alerted to the importance of taking the fore in higher learning.

Again, in sports, TCHS teams have set the pace for others to follow; and in loyalty to Church, country, diocese, school and self, Catholic High students have traditions that they are proud to uphold.

"Win or lose, I'm always ready for refreshments," confides Thelma Broll, left, to Eleanor Green handling the tray of cookies. Miss Bracken is enjoying Eleanor DeCarlo's antics with the punch bowl.

"Are you aware of the modern myth?" queries Jean Ustasiewski on Town Meeting of the Air, Station WBAL. Janet Voelker, Mary Debelius, and Joan Wolf are waiting to say something about that.

IN THIS, OUR SENIOR YEAR,

During Catholic Education Week in November, Kathleen Dougherty, seen with Dr. McCormick, represented Catholic High in a discussion of the benefits of a Catholic education. Seton and Loyola also appeared on this program over WBAL.

IN ITS FIRST season with the Archdiocesan Debating League, Catholic High's team, under the excellent tutelage of Miss Kathleen Bracken, found opportunities to develop its skill and bring credit to instructor and Alma Mater. Following the national topic: Resolved, that the president of the United States should be elected by the direct vote of the people, this group of seniors and juniors experienced the zest that comes from a battle of wits with Loyola, Calvert Hall, Mt. St. Joe, Seton, Notre Dame, Institute, and Mt. St. Agnes. At the close of the season, Rose Goeller, Mary Debelius, Frances Torino, Kathleen Sandkuhler, Carolyn Simon, and Thelma Broll conducted a stimulating debate for the student body.

"Not bad," grins Mary Kay Debelius to brother Chuck when his team from Mt. St. Joe defeated hers. Looking on in friendly approval are debaters Rose Goeller, Betty Pass, Eleanor DeCarlo, Carolyn Simon, Thelma Broll, and opponents Joe Katorski (behind Chuck) and Hal Sanks.

ON THE RADIO and television, Catholic High has enjoyed varied experiences. Four students over Town Meeting of the Air, Station WBAL, conducted February 8, a panel discussion on the role of youth in modern problems. At Christmas time, the Glee Club sang over television and radio at the request of Postmaster Neil Sibley. Groups in national costumes, and singing carols in French, Polish, Italian, and German, assisted Mr. Sibley and the Post Office Glee Club in their Mail Early program.

"Remember, I will tap at the end of seven minutes in the main speech," warns chairman Rose Goeller in this debate with Mt. St. Joe, December 9. Frances Torino and Mary Kay spoke, Carolyn Simon (center front) was alternate. Joe Katorski and Chuck Debelius upheld the affirmative, and Hal Sanks, extreme right, was alternate. Ardent followers of the gavel are facing the debaters.

WE'VE REACHED THE TOP

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?" asked Shakespeare, and what's in a course, query we. A course is more than name deep, and that accounts for the diversity of subjects at Catholic High. In the Academic Commercial course, stenography, bookkeeping, and secretarial studies form a triune wedge for business success. Miss Senior continues to develop speed, accuracy, and responsibility. The home-ec major instructs her in the art of caring for home and children. She learns how to plan a budget and prepare wholesome, attractive meals. The Modern Classical and Latin-Science courses prepare her for a professional career or more extensive study. French and Spanish are popular modern languages. Trig and physics cater to the mathematicians, and for the talented, new majors in art and music have been provided.

Upper left: A pertinent question is indicated by Estelle Fiedler. Prepared to give it serious discussion are Joan Wheeler, Florence Nowak, Agnes Novotny, and Gloria Willine in this English IV class where logical thinking and mature expression are stressed.

Upper right: Kathleen Loeblein is conducting a spirited panel on Virgil's Aeneid. Eager to have the floor are Evelyn Conklin and Lillian Hogan. Weighing the dispute are: Jean DeFrank, Regina Ashcroft, Peggy Hofstetter, Geraldine Quinn, Joan Sperlein and Joan Wynn.

Something has puzzled Polly Ford in this senior trig class. Eileen Oates, at board, is ready to explain. Velma Kirby isn't. Loretta Evans, Ella Michel, Mary Ford, and Peggy Hofstetter also follow the discussion.

Spanish II continues the study of grammar, translation, and reading, with more emphasis on appreciation of Spanish culture. Dolores Paszka finds Hiléa Clancy, Kathleen Kuhns, and Beatrice Kulis alert students.

Laboratory work is a vital part of this physics class. In the foreground, Patricia McDermott, Pat Gross, Claire Leonard, and Estelle Konieczny are carefully developing an experiment on heat.

History boring? Not in Sr. Imelda's class. Mary Horner, at the globe, leads Violet Stricker, Agnes Bond, Teresa Webber and Virginia Klima in a discussion of U. S. Policy of Confiscation. Right, Rita Zwierlein uses the map to indicate practical effects of the Homestead Act. Joan Walconis, Mary Bromwell, Marie McCartney add their part to a lively period of U. S. History.

NOT WITHOUT STUDY, PRAYER, AND PLAY

WITH THE SERENE earnestness that springs from Franciscan culture and spirituality, the Sisters of St. Francis have labored ceaselessly for our threefold growth. Our competent teachers have urged us toward perfection in every field—academic, commercial, artistic, utilitarian. Their instruction has always been underlined by a fundamentally Catholic educational philosophy. With inexhaustible patience, our faculty maintained school discipline and superior achievement.

Impregnated with their Franciscan spirituality, we hope to take our places in life with confidence, responsibility, and integrity.

The gratitude due our faculty cannot be measured, nor can it ever be repaid. Let us hope that our loyalty as alumnae, our wise citizenship, our responsible maturity, and our filial devotion to the Church may in a measure compensate our Sisters of St. Francis, who labor so selflessly for us.

The Chemistry Club is open to science-minded juniors and seniors. Above, left, Club members prepare projects for Open House. "I never knew there was so much to making a jar of cold cream," Jean Krastel confides to Doris Hennessey. Next, Ella Mae Michel adjusts the scale with practiced eye. At top right, seniors learn how to do a worksheet in Bookkeeping I, and compare results with what Vivian Kasper has completed at the board. Below, right, Joan Schmidt cuts a stencil, while Jean Reynolds and Florence Rutkowski observe intently. Dorothy Swiecicka and Norma Massey inspect a finished copy.

Clad in their bright green academic gowns, Patricia Cullison, Joan Schultz, Josephine Jones, Alice Singleton, Kathleen Dougherty, Peggy Hain, Katherine Manley, Margaret Kress, and Claice Button were ushers to religious teachers of the diocese at the Institute held annually in September.

Find two happy contestants from TCHS! In the contest America Without Advertising, Ella Michel, extreme right, won first prize and $100. Gloria Novak, at Ella's right, took third prize—a Gruen wrist watch. This picture was snapped at a luncheon in the Belvedere Hotel. TCHS won six out of the ten top prizes.

Father Fidelis Rice, C.P., noted writer and retreat master, poses with a group of seniors that we may recall our memorable retreat of March 1, 2, 3. Barbara Matter, Claudette Morganti, Agatha Kensicka, Rosemary Bohle, and Shirley Brown are in the foreground.

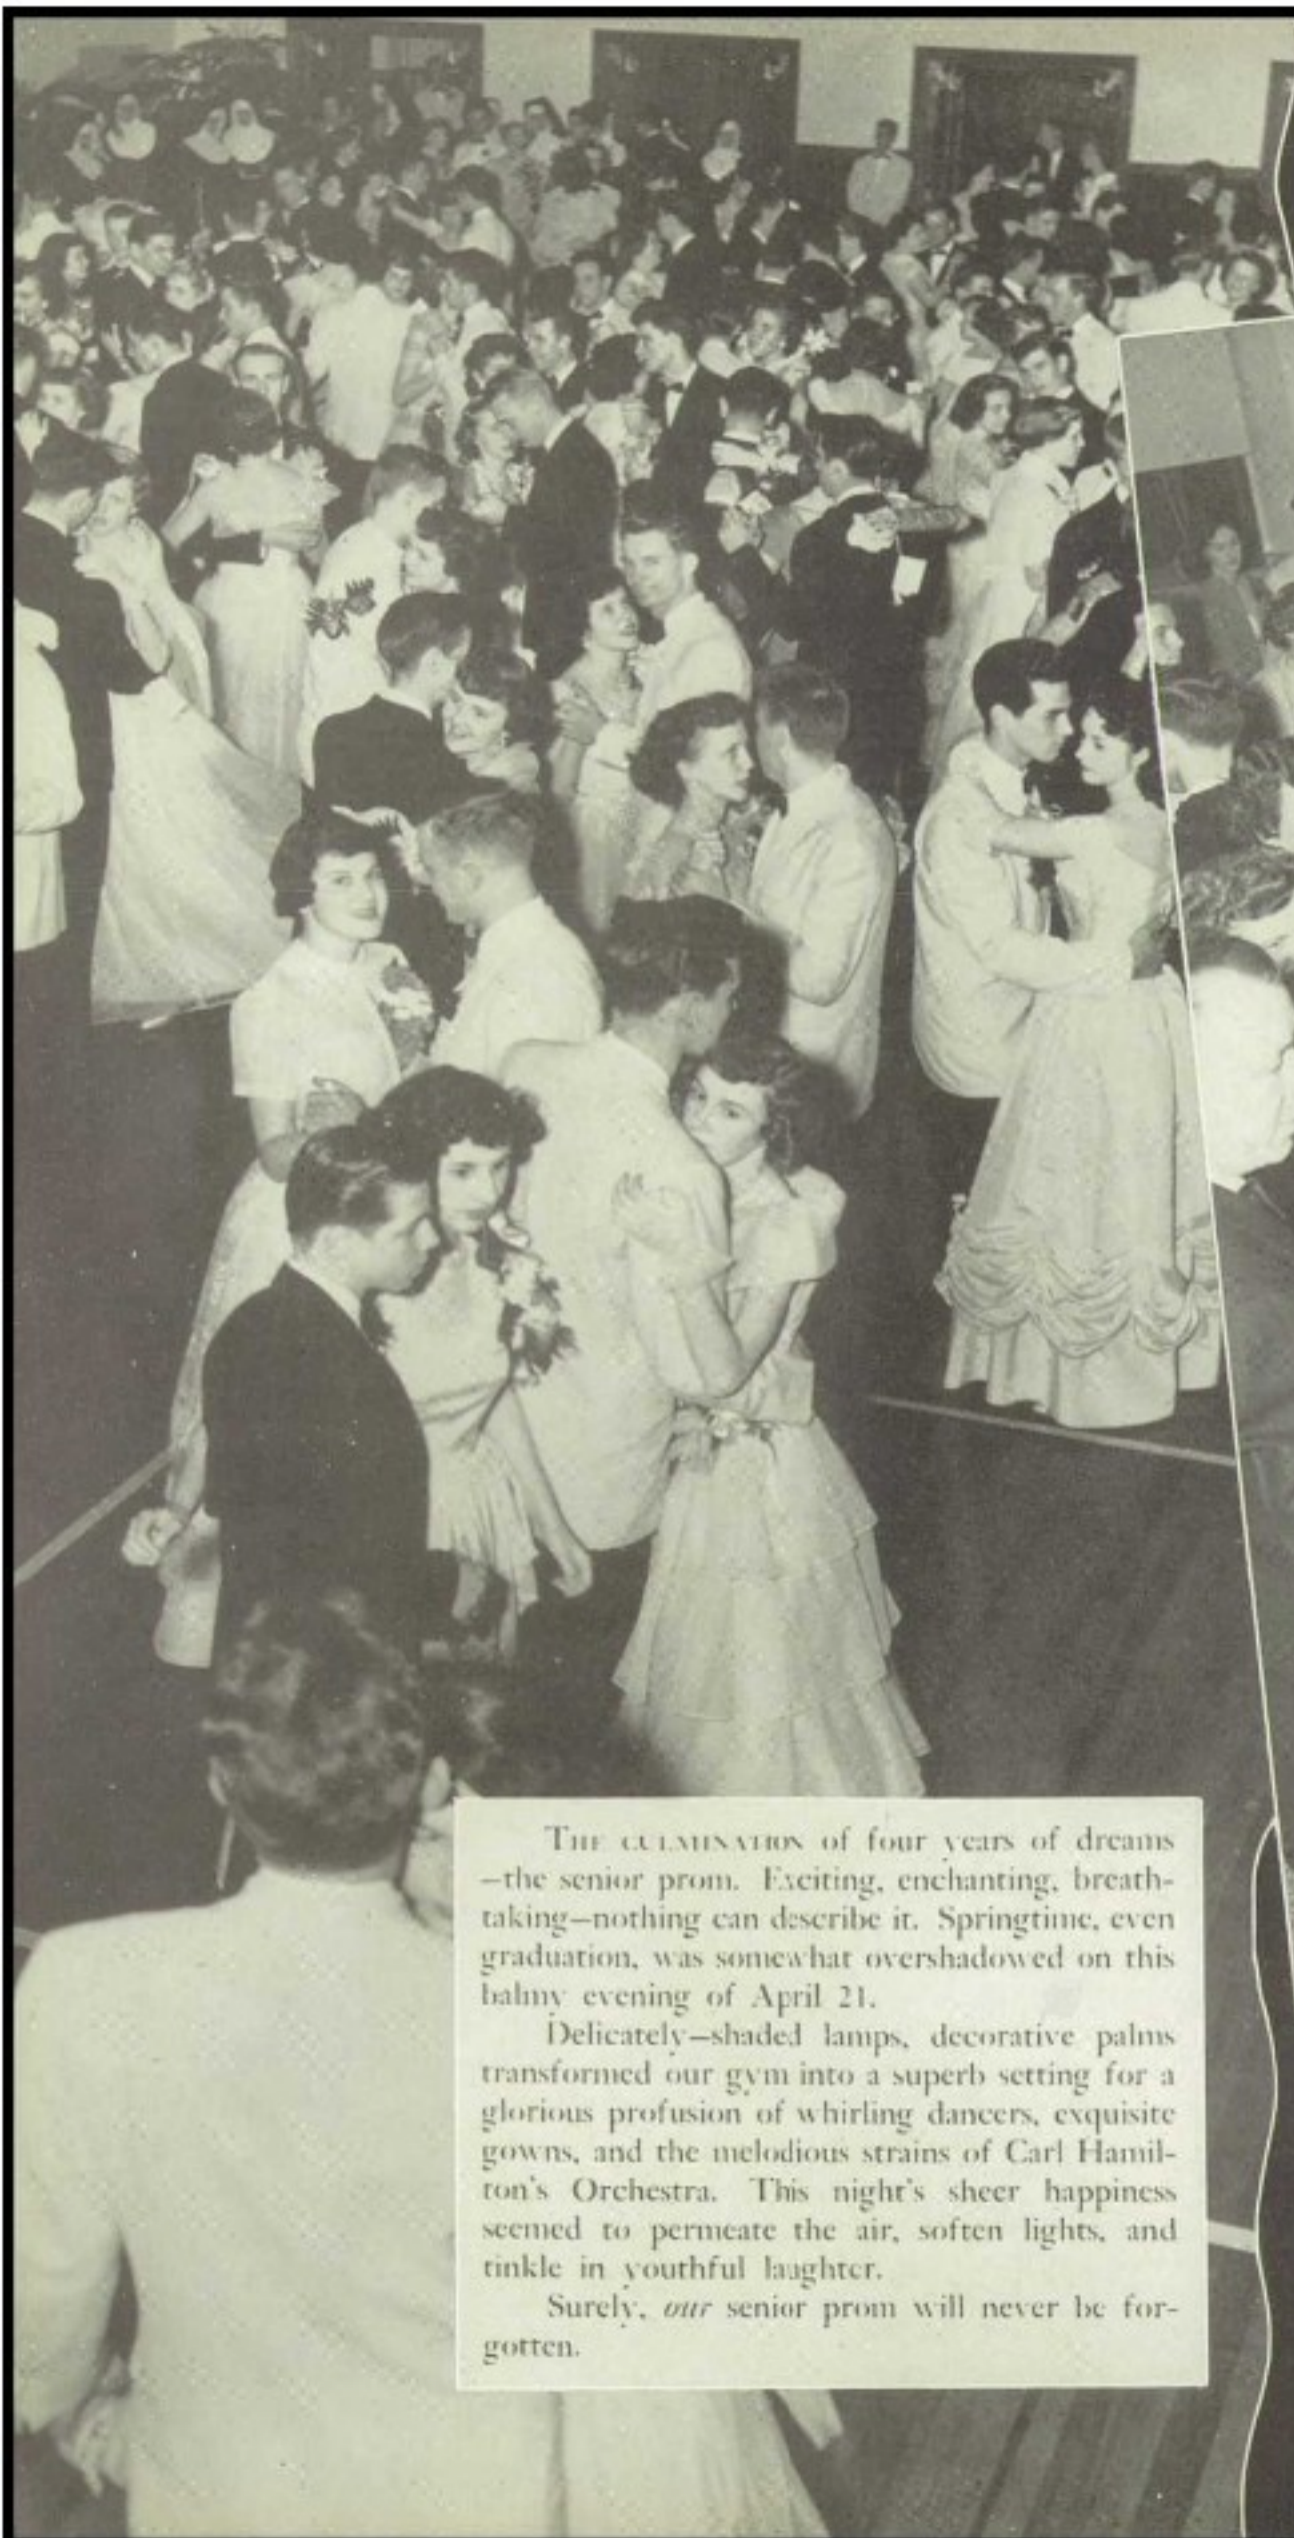

PART II: ENJOYING THINGS

WITH THE RIGHT PERSPECTIVE

THE CULMINATION of four years of dreams—the senior prom. Exciting, enchanting, breathtaking—nothing can describe it. Springtime, even graduation, was somewhat overshadowed on this balmy evening of April 21.

Delicately—shaded lamps, decorative palms transformed our gym into a superb setting for a glorious profusion of whirling dancers, exquisite gowns, and the melodious strains of Carl Hamilton's Orchestra. This night's sheer happiness seemed to permeate the air, soften lights, and tinkle in youthful laughter.

Surely, our senior prom will never be forgotten.

"Hello!" chortles Geraldine Holthaus, a picture of Southern charm, as she spies some new arrivals. Jeanne Caha, Claudette Morganti, Kathleen Loeblein, and escorts, know that the evening ahead is going to be perfect.

At left, seniors and escorts enter lobby where gracious chaperons set the accent for a delightful evening. Mr. and Mrs. William Dougherty. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ebert. Mr. and Mrs. Bart Oates enjoyed the fun with us. Above, prom committee snatch a moment to pose. Seated are: Claire Leonard, Dolores Taylor, Kathleen Dougherty, and Rita Bauer. Standing: Pat Rowan, Irene Hilinski, Ella May Michel, Mary Staub, Peggy Hain, and Patricia Deuerling. Carolyn Strickland was not present for the picture.

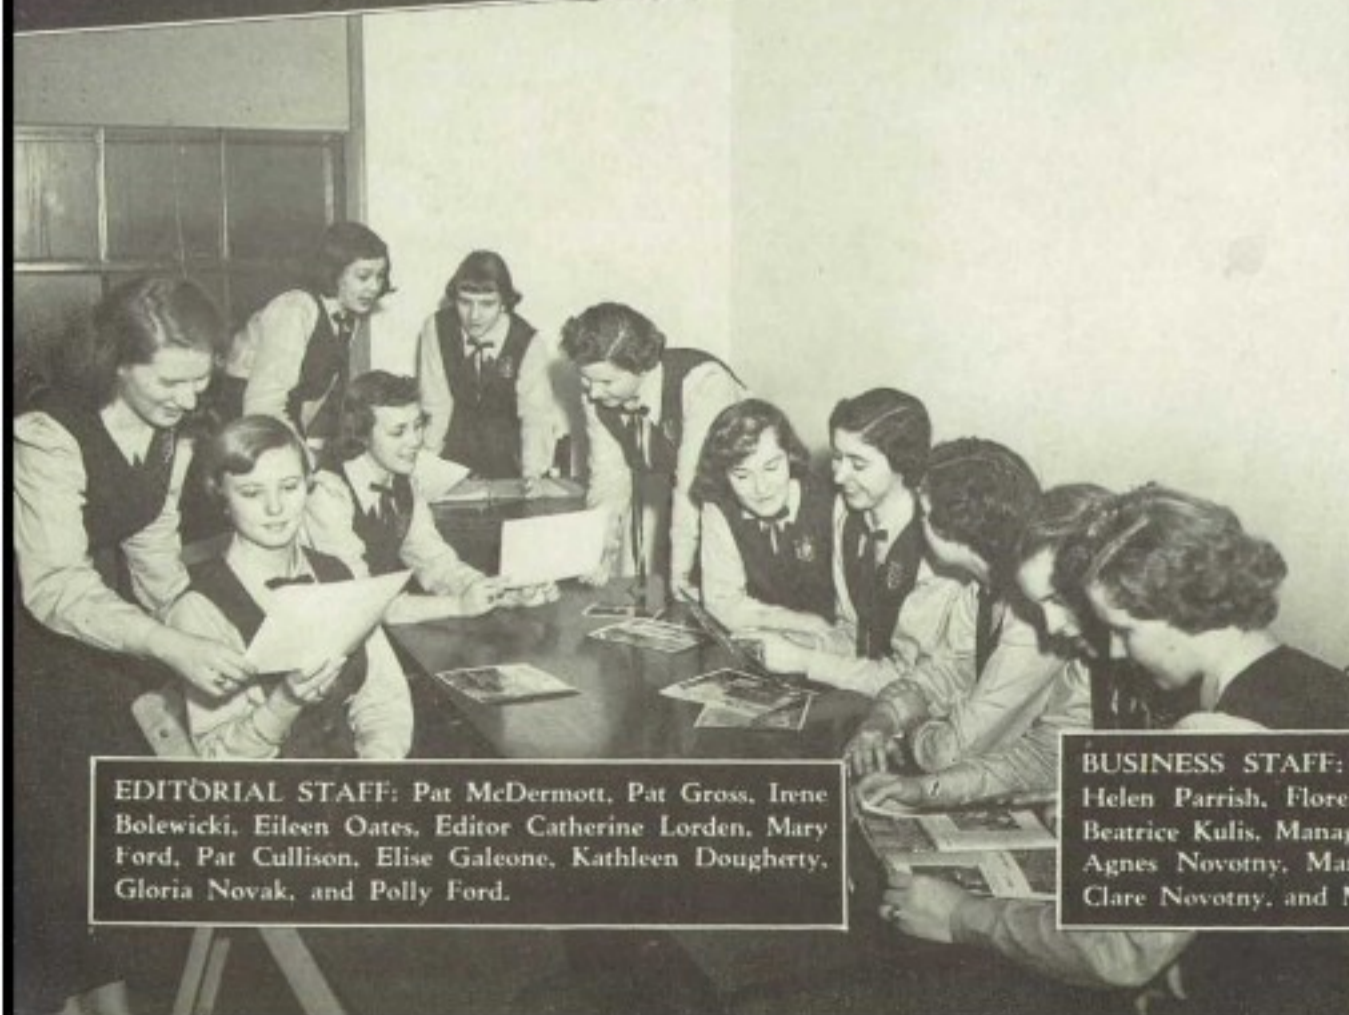

An honor traditional to the class presidency is dedicating the Senior Prom to the Immaculate Queen of Catholic High. With the fine dignity that our president brings to every responsibility, Kathleen Dougherty speaks to Our Lady for every senior present. Sr. M. Carmelia is moderator for this activity.

TCHS HOUR OF CHARM

"Pose for a picture? Certainly!" chorus Mary Lou Lubertine and Catherine Lorden, Troubadour business editor and editor-in-chief respectively. Both are guiding stars of the 1950 edition. Sr. M. Jeanette Clare is adviser.

WE WATCH OUR STORY GROW

EDITORIAL STAFF: Pat McDermott, Pat Gross, Irene Bolewicki, Eileen Oates, Editor Catherine Lorden, Mary Ford, Pat Cullison, Elise Galeone, Kathleen Dougherty, Gloria Novak, and Polly Ford.

BUSINESS STAFF: Marcella Budzik, Mary Staub, Helen Parrish, Florence Rutkowski, Dolores Leiben, Beatrice Kulis, Manager Mary Lubertine, Marian Ely, Agnes Novotny, Margaret Geissler, Rose Knoerlein, Clare Novotny, and Mary Adams.

SLOWLY, SURELY, these four wonderful years reach a climax in graduation, then form the pattern of a cherished past. The hilarious senior play, the exciting senior trip, the long-awaited senior prom—inexorably, all will take their places in the dim corners of the past. In order that they may be revived somehow in nostalgic memory, our high school days are recorded pictorially and verbally by the members of the yearbook staff. Eventually, at some distant moment, the nearly-forgotten, precious events of TCHS days will be seen again, preserved by that illustrious treasury of all pleasant memories—Catholic High's Troubadour.

Staff members Helen Parrish, Margaret Geissler, and Elise Galeone haven't decided how to arrange pictures in the senior section. Margaret's suggestion finally won.

AND PROUDLY READ THE NEWS

IN A SCHOOL of 1100 girls there's bound to be a whirligig of verbal information, special events, amusing incidents, and minor tragedies. The medium that allows us 1100 to share one another's experiences is The Highway whose popularity is demonstrated by its eager reception and unrivaled support.

Contending that there is a story to be found in every routine happening, The Highway staff investigate with "a nose for news," in order to explain current events, inform about future happenings, influence opinion, and portray typical high school life.

Under the aegis of Sister Catharine de Ricci and Editor Jeanette Bautro, The Highway has this year achieved further honors, especially in its "Medalist" citation from the Columbia School Press Association.

Is good journalistic practice evident? Talented Editor Jeanette Bautro, with assistants Peggy Hain and Mary Magrogan, examine a school paper with this in mind. Jane Brune and Joan Fauth, not pictured, are the artists on the staff.

These alert journalism students know how to scrutinize the news as well as to write it. Under Sr. Catharine de Ricci's direction, they publish The Highway, pride of TCHS.

WE ARE OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Sodality officers, spurred on by the enthusiasm of Sr. M. Irmalita, moderator, have sponsored the Five Clubs, Inner Circle, the layette drive for poor infants and the May Procession. Their motto is: Ad Jesum per Mariam. Pictured are: Mildred DeVoe, Virginia Spiege, Claire Button, Dolores Taylor, Katherine Manley, Vice-prefect Irene Bolewicki, Doris Funk, Mary Hartman, Prefect Mary Magrogan, Mary Gaphardt, Mary Smith, Jean Helton, Ann Ebert.

A program of prayer, study, and sacrifice for the missions is the aim of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, whose moderator is Sr. M. Thomasine. Senior representatives are: Joan Schultz, Mary Ravenis, Mary Bromwell, Anna Krause, Mary Coco, Nancy Annarino, Josephine Jones, Prefect Susan Dentz, Madeline Mattheu, Patricia Watkins, Jane Brune, Mary Tyszko, and Mary Scott.

The principal efforts of the Legion of Decency at TCHS are to combat the production of indecent literature, stage productions, and motion pictures. Sr. M. Vincentine is moderator. Senior representatives are: Lalide Metzger, Rose Marie Knoerlein, Loretto Evans, Joanne Restivo, Edna Gross, Domnica Butta, Ella Michel, Catherine Watts, Mary Lou Lubertine, Dorothy Hohenberger, and Prefect Joan Mullaney.

"Volunteers needed for the Ladies Retreat!" This is a familiar request of Sr. M. Carmelia when TCHS plays hostess to Catholic women of Baltimore spending a day of recollection in union with Our Lord. Seniors who have served faithfully for four years are: Jean Caha, Marie Filipowicz, Joan Sperlein, Jane Etzel, Gloria Moore, Joan Jacobowski, Regina Ashcroft, and Carolyn Strickland.

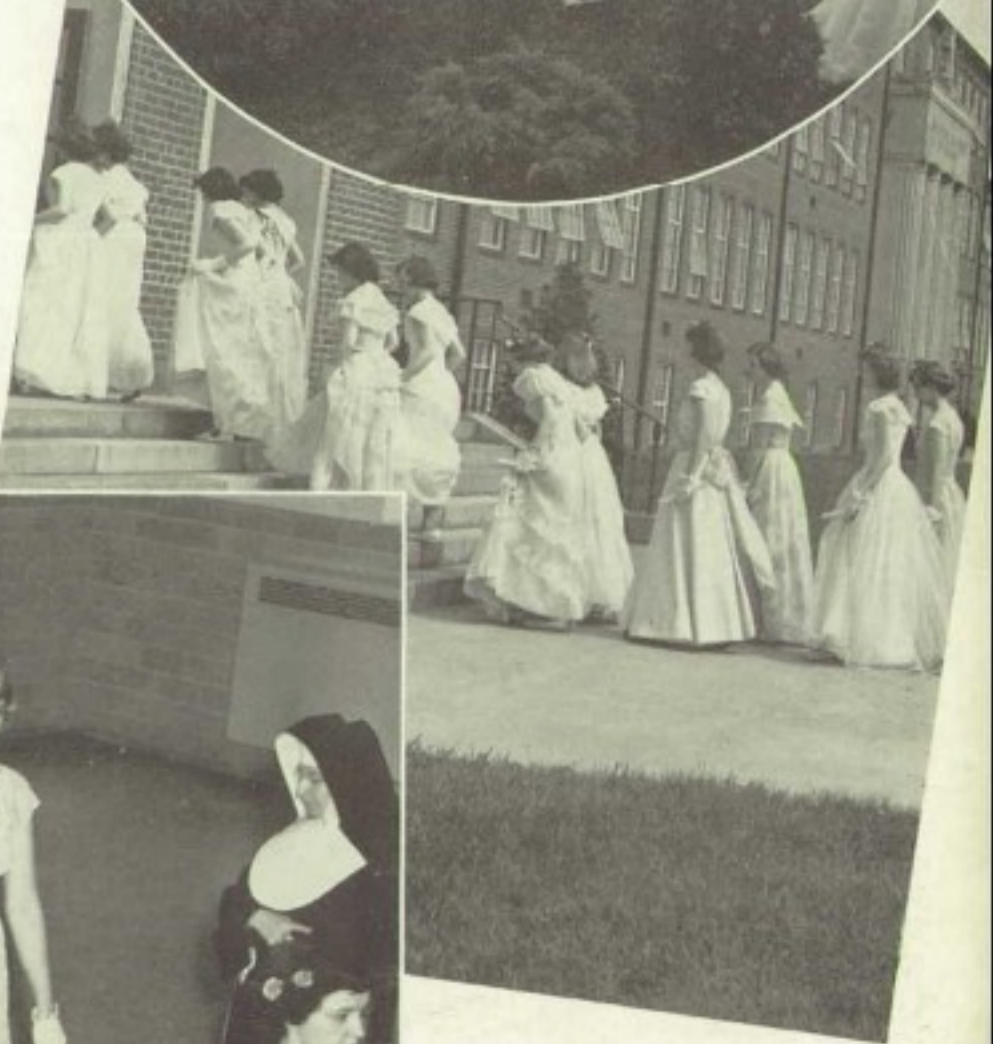

Our beautiful May Procession took place on the campus. The Senior Class formed a guard of honor for the undergraduate procession. Chanting the rosary, the student body proceeded to the outdoor shrine of Our Lady of Grace where Sodality Prefect Mary Magrogan crowned for us the lovely symbol of our Ideal and our Mother.

DEVOTION TO THE MOTHER OF GOD is a year-long practice at TCHS. Greeting the student body in the foyer is the beautiful image of Our Lady of Victory. Every homeroom is reminded of Mary's benign care in its revered Lady of Grace. Too, the Sisters' Convent begs her patronage under the peculiarly Franciscan title, St. Mary of the Angels. In May, the student body pays special homage to Mary in the annual May procession, held on the campus this year on Tuesday morning, May 30. The Reverend J. Chester Griffith officiated.

After the Act of Consecration to Mary Immaculate, we entered the auditorium for the closing exercise. Relatives and friends squeezed into every available space, for, like us, they appreciate the spiritual value of Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Below can be seen Sr. Carmelia demurely waiting for the May Court to conclude the procession.

JENNY KISSED ME!

THE HOWLING November winds around Catholic High's auditorium had high competition in the roaring applause for Jean Kerr's three-act comedy, Jenny Kissed Me. In this annual senior activity, the Drama Guild was assisted by four talented actors from Calvert Hall.

Although every act was set to a rollicking mood, still, the comical antics of "Callow" Owen, and the excellent characterization of Mrs. Deazy evoked gales of laughter. The romantic aspects of this basketful-of-merriment were supplied when Cupid, alarmed by irascible Fr. Moynihan, aimed his lover's potion at quaint Jenny and adoring Michael.

"Dizzy" teen-agers (Fr. Moynihan's opinion) appeal for some pungent advice—Bernice Green, Gertrude Ruskell, Lorraine Vanik, and Irma Skinner. Right, Sr. Mary of the Angels (Lillian Kaufman) trustfully presents her "problems" to Father. Mrs. Deazy (Theresa Janocha) views his belligerent pose with alarm.

Above, Fr. Moynihan attempts a stoic calm when Miss Sterns (Loretta Krawczyk) presents him with another batch of pineapple-rice. Miss Sterns is pleasantly oblivious of his true feelings.

"IT WAS AS THOUGH A NET OF WORDS"

COME LET'S be gay on this beautiful day—it's the annual Spring Musicale. The Glee Club and Orchestra, lovely in a rainbow of gowns, produced the program on April 28-30. Contributing their share of musical fare with selections from Brahms and Bach, the Orchestra preceded the Glee Club's interpretation of "It's Spring," "The Blue Danube," "Yankee Glory" and two negro spirituals.

Continuing in a southern manner, the Verse

Choir presented "Old Southern Street Cries" and "Pierrot." The A Cappella Choir, clad in their Elizabethan-style Nile green, arose with "A Morning In Spring," and "Ave Maria."

In the finale, Our Lady of Lourdes shone brightly with her rosary, lighting the way for the blind, deaf, and crippled, as the Glee Club and A Cappella Choir concluded with "Our Lady of the Mountains."

The Choral Demonstration, centered about the Peer Gynt Suite by Edvard Greig, depicts young Peer hopelessly in love with a Norwegian lass. Girls of Section 6C were the milkmaids who sang for grief-stricken Peer Gynt.

The Verse Choir like poetry in melodic tones. Their program included "Pierrot," by Sara Teasdale; "My Wish for You," Selected; "No, Sir," an Old English Ballad; and "Old Southern Street Cries," by Agnes Curren Hamm.

Conjectures regarding the finale always arise at Musicales-time. This year's dramatic portrayal of a Lourdes scene will not soon be forgotten. As the benign Virgin appeared at the grotto, the Glee Club sang the "Lourdes Hymn" and "Lady of the Mountains."

WERE FLUNG TO CATCH A STAR"

The A Cappella choir, with Sr. Francis Marie directing, is seen during its part of the performance.

Patricia Clark knows well how to draw liquid tones from the new Baldwin organ, more recent addition to the music facilities of Catholic High.

TRILLING ADVENTURE ON THE HIGH C'S

ONE OF THE major events in the life of the undergraduate is the annual Choral Demonstration when she may face an admiring world from the vantage point of Catholic High's stage.

This year, on January 26 and 28, freshmen and sophomores were able to display their musical versatility in "Norwegian Echoes," which featured the music of Edvard Grieg.

By means of song, narration, and drama, the sophomores gave evidence of their appreciation of Grieg's genius. Scenes from his Peer Gynt Suite, and rendition of "I Love Thee" and "My Johann," were graphic indication of it.

In two groups, the freshmen made their debut in song. These choristers delighted their audience with: "Come, Come Away," "The Peddler," an old folk tune, "Two Suitors," and "The Little Drum Major" by Strickland.

Holzappel, A. Kresslein, M. Kuhn, M. Lioi, A. Marick, L. Metzger, M. Schuler, M. Seeberger, M. Vogel, R. Weslowski, D. Ziegler, M. Adams, E. Amann, T. Broll, E. Conklin, S. Dentz, J. Ebert, J. Hogan, K. LaRossa, Y. Maffei, C. O'Donnell, C. Pitta, G. Quinn, K. Rawa, M. Speer, V. Spiegel, S. Terzi, F. Torino, J. Wilson.

THE MUSICAL range and beauty of soloists Mary Pistorio and Margaret Rohe, to mention but two, testify to the professional quality of the voice training provided in the Music Department. Culmination of private voice lessons is the Recital, given at the end of four years. This affords the student's guests opportunity to witness her accomplishments.

Sister Francis Marie coaches dramatics, and is group and private voice instructor.

Margaret Rohe, clad in shimmering green taffeta, lends her talents to the Musical, as she favors us with Strauss's "Blue Danube." Margaret is in her third year of voice training under Sr. Francis Marie.

CATHOLIC HIGH'S ORCHESTRA: Front row: Angela Dausch, Helen Lorenz, Norma Massey, Margaret Kress, Carol Boughan, Mary England, Elizabeth Miller. Second: Helen Conors, Rose Petr, Mary Canniliato, Rita

SOMETHING SPECIAL

BUILDING AN orchestra is like erecting a splendid piece of architecture. Each stone, each craftsman, is essential to the success of the artist who dreams the whole. Each member of the Orchestra, each instrument, every hour of practice, is indispensable to the total melodic experience that the audience enjoys. In the Catholic High School Orchestra, those who dream its future achievements are Sr. Mary Genevieve, moderator, and Mr. Robert Lansinger, director.

Orchestra members have learned the joy that comes from fusing talents to capture the artistic moment.

The A Cappella Choir and members of the Drama Guild combined talents to present the Christmas Entertainment on December 18. Shown above, these songsters so warmed the heart of proud Queen Bess (Joan Cala) that she withdrew her punishment of young Lord Denbeigh.

O NIGHT DIVINE!

ENTHRALLED BY the beauty of the Incarnation, and wishing to convey its wondrous message to his beloved Assisi, St. Francis was inspired to construct the Nativity scene for the Christmas Mass of 1223. Thus began, in Franciscanwise, the custom of creating the Bethlehem scene in churches, chapels, and homes at Christmas time.

Relieved again at Catholic High in the annual Christmas Entertainment, The Drama Guild unfolded the message of Christ's birth through carol, sacred hymn, drama, and the touching Nativity tableau. A play laid in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, portrayed how that monarch was affected by the World's Sweetest Story to undo her wrath against a political victim.

Queen Elizabeth muses haughtily over the Bethlehem scene while Jester Lorraine Vanik, Lady-in-Waiting Mary Bromwell, and attendants, are also absorbed by the vivid presentation of court entertainers.

Above, Mary Alice Klein, sprained finger and all, leaps to block a Setonite from getting two points. Storming in to assist her is Margaret Kahn, while Irma Skinner waits for the rebound. Varsity edged out Seton, 38 to 32.

A tense moment in the first Seton game: Margaret Kahn, forward, is going to meet some brisk opposition from alert Seton players. In the background, Alice Klein and Irma Skinner register considerable feeling.

THE REFEREE'S shrill command silences the packed gym. Tense faces turn, and hundreds of eyes concentrate on a slender girl in yellow, with ball poised in her hands. She tosses it toward the basket. The net swishes. A roar fills the gym. Another point for Catholic High!

The capable leadership of Coach Mrs. Peggy Case, the fine inspiration of moderator Sr. M. Manuclita, the enthusiastic support of the student body, and the hard work of the team have produced another winner!

Along with victory, basketball is synonymous with good sportsmanship at Catholic High. Sports are a real conditioner of character. The lessons of how to accept defeat and wear victory learned on the hardwood court remain long after basketball is forgotten.

WE'VE THE BEST TEAM IN THE TOWN . . .

COACH MRS. ALLEN CASE

A GREAT TEAM: Harriet Dunn, Irma Skinner, Barbara Reed, Catherine Michel, Captain Peggy Heinle, Charlotte Bell, Margaret Kahn, and Mary Alice Klein.

NOT PICTURED are the intra-mural games held at the end of the basketball season. Each section has its team which may not include varsity members—also its own inimitable cheerleaders. Through elimination, Section 1D was proved this year's victor. This method reveals possible stellar material and develops a burning class spirit. Enthusiasm for these games is school-wide.

A SECOND HELPING OF STARS

The Triple Threat! Jay-Vee Captain Pat Thiess, A.A. President Mary Alice Klein, and Varsity Captain Peggy Heinle represent mighty strong defense on the court.

Here they are! Cute in natty outfits are the girls who put zing in a cheer: Anita Morningstar, Lorraine Humphreys, Mary Janowick, Captain Angela Slomba, Anna Mae Smith, Veronica Kendryna, Kathleen Rawa.

At it again . . . "Let's give a one—two—three . . ." Being a cheerleader takes more than looks. It entails vim, pep, and practice—plenty of it. Competitive try-outs early in the year are open to all students. Those who qualify work hard to boost school spirit.

A toss-up between Seton and the Varsity shows Harriet Dunn, forward, determined to retrieve the ball for Catholic High. A tense game finally gave us the lead; 38-32.

PINNING THEM DOWN . . .

Even TCHS bowlers who confess a lowly tally of 32 smile as radiantly as their more accomplished sisters, for all agree that bowling is great fun, no matter what the final score. Anyone with an A.A. card is welcome.

BOWLING BALLS, hard-wood alleys and a group of duck-pin enthusiasts have teamed up to bring two more trophies to Catholic High. Glittering among the other awards in the coach's office are the Varsity and Junior Varsity Bowling trophies for 1950.

An average of eleven wins against one defeat proved that the Varsity knew how to knock down the pins; while the J.V. even surpassed their older sisters by playing one more game and winning it, to end the season with a twelve and one record. The team average was 92.41.

Ranked among the top bowlers were: Shirley Brown, Helen Leva, Rose DeCosmo, Betty Novak, Joan Mullaney, Alvina Oberle, Mary Coco, Elsie Coker, Theresa Pribyl, Joan Holt-haus, Eileen Oates, Rita Bauer, Anna Sciuto and Joan Sperlein.

... TIME TO GET YOUR BEARINGS

SHINING BLADES and winged wheels flash by in a whirlpool of activity. Whether on the polished hardwood floor at Carlin's or on the glimmering ice at Sport's Center, we find Catholic High Girls avid sports fans.

Friday afternoons see many junior Sonja Henies with skates slung over their shoulders, moving happily toward the skating rink. There they have fun galore. Roller Skating is a new addition to the variety of AA Activities. This Monday afternoon pastime has been adopted by many TCHS enthusiasts who have found that circulating wheels and slicing blades develop flexible muscles, strong limbs, and easy coordination. Moreover, it's great fun, too.

At the Sport Center Skating Rink, Pat Lanahan, Pauline Picarella, and Pat Lentz are getting ready to take a rapid swirl across the ice.

En route to the auditorium, the Baccalaureate procession is seen in the dignity of traditional tropical palm caps and gowns, with gold satin collars and white tassels.

Dr. McCormick and Fr. Noll distribute Holy Communion during the Mass, as Sr. deSales plays softly on the organ. A glimpse at so sacred and personal a moment precludes words.

"This is très élégante," murmurs Ann Kerrigan, using some French to match the occasion. "It's just swell to Sr. Zacharia is telling Sr. Arnoldine that everything looks lovely. As you can see, Kathleen Dougherty and Peggy Haine are telling the world the same thing.

ACCORDING TO tradition, St. Francis was once named King of Youth. He must have rejoiced then, on Sunday, May 28, as 263 of us celebrated the completion of four years at TCHS by the yearly Baccalaureate Mass and Communion.

Dressed in white caps and gowns, we proceeded in stately procession to the auditorium for High Mass, so fittingly expressive of Catholic gratitude and joy. The Reverend Leo J.

me," confides her friend Mary Doll, prepared to enjoy the breakfast with 262 classmates.

Right after Mass, the folks swarm around to say how proud they are of us. Basking in this pleasant glow are: Jeanne Caha, Jean Ashcroft, Winifred Butler, Jean Cala, Agnes Welsh, and Kathleen Loeblein.

McCormick, Ph.D., Diocesan Superintendent of Schools, officiated and delivered the discourse. The senior class sang the Mass in the swelling tones of Gregorian Chant.

In the cafeteria, flowers, palms, and attractive tables made a festival spot where a catered breakfast was served. Glee Club and Orchestral entertainment added to the day's loveliness. Then, too, the felicitations of parents, faculty, and friends made this day a precious memory!

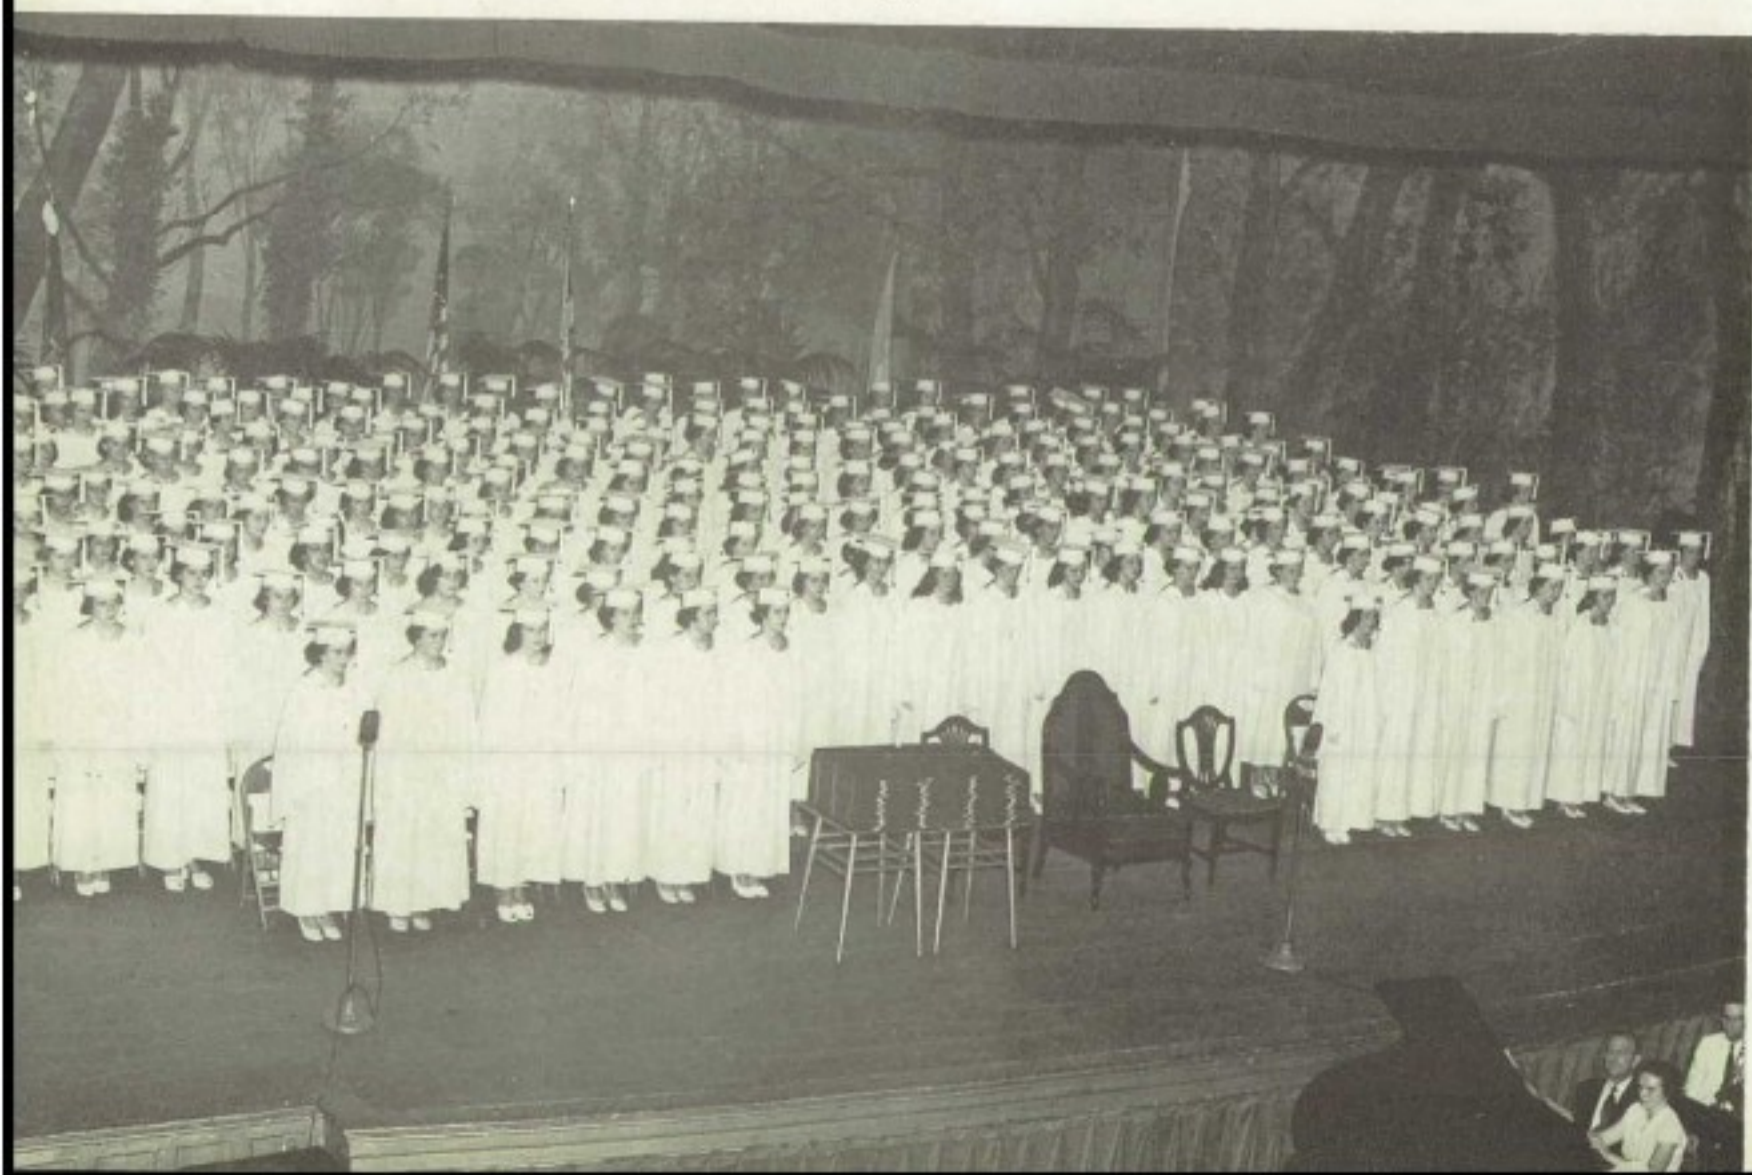

The Commencement Procession was arranged according to courses: Latin-Science, Modern Classical, Academic Commercial, and the General Course. It is quite evident that we are of absorbing interest to our audience.

WE GRADUATE IN THE HOLY YEAR OF GRACE

For the last time, probably, the graduating class of 1950 in a body sing "Viva Catholic High!" The words of our school song were never clearer, never more meaningful:

Catholic High your grateful daughters promise ever to uphold principles of truth and honor as our lives unfold.

Evelyn Voosen has just received her diploma. Myra Wetters and Esther Wisniewski advance toward theirs. In the background, the remaining graduates await the most significant moment of this day.

Estelle Konieczny has just bowed graciously to His Excellency, the Rt. Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, who has awarded her the coveted diploma.

The diplomas we have just received are, as Father Smith has pointed out, our credentials to American society.

THE SOLEMN FINALE to our senior lives was graduation day. A line of white-robed scholars, we walked gravely through the Lyric Theater that afternoon.

Intently we listened for our name to echo through the crowded Lyric as the Reverend Leo McGrain called each in turn. His Excellency, Right Reverend Lawrence Shehan, S.T.D., presented our diplomas and the Very Reverend Ignatius Smith, O.P. of the Catholic University of America, delivered the address. In a body we sang "Thank God for a Garden" by Del Riego and "Moment Musical" by Schubert.

So notable it was, that June 4, 1950, when we, 263 graduates of The Catholic High School of Baltimore, approached an adult world fortified by the sound principles of our Catholic education and the fair promise of our Franciscan heritage.

Mr. and Mrs. Staub were two of many parents who rejoiced at the successful termination of their daughters' high school career. Mary Ellen Staub places an affectionate kiss on Mother's glowing cheek.
